Taps

Provided by Lt. Col. Tena Moore
Commander, 117th FSS
Source: Wikipedia

Taps is a musical piece sounded by the U.S. military nightly to indicate that it is "lights out." The tune is also sometimes known as "Butterfield's Lullaby" or by the lyrics of its second verse, "Day is Done." It is also played during flag ceremonies and funerals, generally on bugle or trumpet. The term originates from the Dutch term taptoe. The tune is actually a variation of an earlier bugle call known as the "Scott Tattoo" which was used in the U.S. from 1835 until 1860, and was arranged in its present form by the Union Army Brigadier General Daniel Butterfield, an American Civil War general who commanded the 3rd Brigade of the 1st Division in the V Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac while at Harrison's Landing, Virginia, in July 1862 to replace a previous French bugle call used to signal "lights out." Butterfield's bugler, Oliver W. Norton, of Erie, Pennsylvania, was the first to sound the new call. Within months, Taps was used by both Union and Confederate forces. It was officially recognized by the United States Army in 1874. Taps concludes many military funerals conducted with honors at Arlington National Cemetery, as well as hundreds of others around the United States. When sounded at a funeral, it is customary for serving members of the military or veterans to salute. The corresponding gesture for civilians is to place the right hand over the heart.

The tune is also sounded at many memorial services in Arlington's Memorial Amphitheater and at grave sites throughout the cemetery where it became a standard component to U.S. military funerals in 1891. Captain John C. Tidball, West Point, Class of 1848, started the custom of playing taps at a military funeral. It was in early July, 1862 at Harrison's Landing, that a corporal of Tidball's Battery A, 2nd Artillery, died. He was, Tidball recalled later, "a most excellent man." Tidball desired to bury him with full military honors, but was refused, for military reasons, permission to fire three guns over his grave. Tidball later wrote, "The thought suggested itself to me to sound taps instead, which I did. The idea was taken up by others, until in a short time it was adopted by the entire army and is now looked upon as the most appropriate and touching part of a military funeral." As Tidball proudly proclaimed, "Battery A has the honor of having introduced this custom into the service, and it is worthy of historical note."

Taps is sounded during each of the 2,500 military wreath ceremonies conducted at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier every year, including the ones held on Memorial Day. The ceremonies are viewed by many people, including veterans, school groups, and foreign officials.

The 117ARW Honor Guard is in need of a bugler who can play taps. The individual must be able to perform at ceremonies and funerals. Individual must be flexible (for funerals, possibly only a day's notice). If you are interested, contact Maj. Jon Taylor, 714-2460 or Capt. Mike Marshall, 714-2337.

Air Force officials issue guidelines for green fleece

According to a message issued by AF/A1, "The sage-green fleece jacket, commonly known as Generation III or Gen III, was the original version authorized for wear. Due to limited availability at Army Air Force Exchange Service Military Clothing Stores and through the Defense Supply Center Philadelphia, some units purchased and issued other versions."

The message continues by explaining these other versions may be worn as long as they meet the configuration requirements for name tapes and rank. Requirements for wear are the following:

ments for name tapes and rank. Requirements for wear are the following:

- A Velcro ABU print last-name tape with dark-blue block lettering, centered between the zipper and sleeve seam on the wearer's right chest
- A Velcro ABU print U.S. Air Force tape with dark-blue block lettering, adjacent to the name tape and centered between the zipper and sleeve seam on the wearer's left chest
- A Velcro subdued cloth rank with a solid sage-green background, flush and centered above the last-name tape on the wearer's right chest.
- Fleece must remain zipped no lower than halfway between the name tape and the collar
- The collar must be folded over and resting on the shoulder, chest and back when the zipper is not completely zipped
- The bottom length of the fleece must be as close to length of ABU top as possible
- Sleeves must be worn down at all times
- Fleece must be kept in a neat, serviceable and professional appearance at all times
- The sage-green fleece may only be worn over the ABU top, and is not authorized to be worn solely over a T-shirt, thermal underwear or similar undergarments, when worn as an outer garment

Items authorized for wear with the fleece include black or sage-green leather, suede or knit gloves; black or sage-green watch caps; black scarves that are tucked in; and black ear muffs.

Commanders also have the authority to allow wear of the fleece indoors if mission needs require it.

As of the following dates, wear of the listed uniform items will be phased out:

Nov. 1, 2011

- Battle Dress Uniform
- Desert Camouflage Uniform
- Tan boots (excluding Airmen deployed to the area of responsibility)

Farewell

by Master Sgt. Tracy Tolliver
99th ARS, First Sergeant

Sadly, I've come to the end of another assignment and it is time to say goodbye.

As I depart to Wright Patterson AFB in Dayton, Ohio, I want to tell everyone in the 117th Air Refueling Wing just how enormously grateful I am for your hospitality and acceptance toward not only me but all members of the 99th Air Refueling Squadron.

I can honestly say that this has been one of the biggest highlights of my (so far) 21-year career.

My only regret is that I never mastered the proper ratio of tequila to margarita mix in those gas cans.

I have met some incredible people here and will miss each and every one of you. I have enjoyed getting to learn a little bit about each of you. I will not soon forget my experience here and will greatly miss my new Guard Family. I would love to hear from you so drop me a line or if you find yourself in "Buckeye Country" please look me up.

My assignment here in Birmingham has been a great adventure and I leave here with a new perspective and will never again refer to Guard Members as "Weekend Warriors"!

Thanks for the memories and God Speed...
MSgt. Tracy Tolliver

Saying goodbye is a part of the human experience that we encounter every day, sometimes nonchalantly; sometimes with great emotion...I will truly miss all of you! ROLL TIDE!!!

First Shirt Notes

Female - Hair: If worn, hairpins, combs, headbands, elastic bands and barrettes must match the hair color (i.e., blonde, brunette, natural red, black, grey), but hair must still comply with bulk and appearance standards. Ornaments are not authorized (i.e., ribbons, beads, jeweled pins). Scrunches are not authorized. When using a clip or hairpins, hair will not present the appearance of a rooster tail; when hair is in a bun, all loose ends must be tucked in and secured; when hair is in a pony tail, it must be pulled all the way through the elastic band and may hang naturally downward and not extending below the bottom of the collar (except while in the PTU). As with all hairstyles, a neat and professional image is essential.

The mandatory wear date for the Airman Battle Uniform Oct. 1, 2011

The Chaplains' Service and Family Readiness definitely stepped up again

by MSgt. Patricia Vaca
117 ARW HRO Remote Designee

Friday the 19th of August I was telling a friend about a Marriage Enrichment Retreat the 117th Chaplain Service and Family Readiness were sponsoring by Mark Gungor. The retreat was going to be that weekend and my husband and I were planning to attend. My friend commented that "those things never turn out like you want them to" and to be honest I too was a little worried. I had gone to the Web site and watched the trailers and they were so funny, but if the retreat didn't go well I would never be able to get my husband to go with me to another one.

My worries were definitely unfounded. The chaplains' service and Family Readiness definitely stepped up again. Pam Lacey, Chaplains Debra Berry and Daryl Hamaker along with their crew Jennifer Packer and Gladys Zimmerman, did an awesome job of presenting the information and making sure we all had a good time. It was like spending the weekend at the Comedy Club.

The weekend was totally free, we had a very nice, comfortable room, we ate so much I gained three pounds and laughed all weekend. Mark Gungor can take a serious issue, make it funny and teach you valuable tools all at the same time.

I not only learned a few things about working with my husband I also learned a few things about me.

SAFETY NET

What types of mishaps have been killing Air National Guard members in 2011?

by Master Sgt. Trey Hamm
117ARW Ground Safety Manager

5 members died due to injuries sustained in motorcycle mishaps.

1 member died due to injuries sustained in an automobile mishap.

1 member died from injuries sustained in a four-wheeler ATV mishap.

1 member died due to an accidental explosion at his civilian employer.

1 member died when he fell from a ladder.

DOES THE GAIN JUSTIFY THE RISK?

US Air Force Uniforms: Civil Air Patrol

Personnel of the Civil Air Patrol, the all volunteer civilian auxiliary of the United States Air Force, are permitted to wear certain Air Force uniforms with distinctive CAP markings and insignia. Senior Members (age 18 and older) may only wear Air Force style uniforms if they meet military grooming and slightly modified military weight standards. Cadets (age 12-21) must only meet military grooming standards until their 18th birthday, at which time they must meet both military grooming and military weight standards. Members who don't meet Air Force standards may wear alternate CAP-specific uniforms.

Air Force uniforms authorized for wear by Civil Air Patrol members include Service Dress, Mess Dress (for Senior Members only), the woodland camouflage Battle Dress Uniform (BDU), the green Nomex flight suit, and the CWU-45P green Nomex flight jacket, the latter two items being restricted to aircrew only. CAP distinctive markings include gray rank slides on the duty uniform, as opposed to blue rank slides of Air Force officers, as well as gray rank slides on the Service Dress coat where Air Force officers wear pin-on metal rank insignia. Mess Dress is also distinctive in that shoulder boards for CAP Senior Member officers in the ranks of Colonel and below worn on Mess Dress uniforms, and the sleeve braid for all CAP Senior Member officer ranks, will be dark blue cloth versus the silver metallic cloth worn by Air Force officers. Cadet enlisted uniforms also differ in rank placement, with collar pins instead of the sewn sleeve chevrons traditionally worn by enlisted Air Force members. Currently, CAP also wears the BDU with blue and white name/branch tapes and blue and white/yellow rank insignia, similar to what was worn by United States Air Force personnel on the since-discontinued solid green Air Force fatigue uniforms of the 1960s and 1970s. All of these changes are made to reduce confusion in identifying the military members of the Regular Air Force, the Air Force Reserve and the Air National Guard with the civilian members of CAP as the Air Force Auxiliary.

Civil Air Patrol typically lags behind the U.S. Air Force by several years in authorizing Air Force uniform changes. This is due mostly to the fact that many CAP units often rely on surplus or used USAF uniforms for its members, particularly CAP Cadets. CAP is expected to be granted authority to wear the ABU, with CAP distinctive changes, sometime after full roll out is completed for the active duty Air Force and the Air Reserve Components in November 2011.

Purple Heart medal found in April's storm debris

by 2nd Lt. Jonathan Russell
117 ARW/PA

9/15/2011 - 117th AIR REFUELING WING, Birmingham, Ala. -- A Purple Heart was found in the storm debris two weeks after the April 2011 tornadoes in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The Purple Heart is believed to have been awarded to Pfc. Amos H. McDonald, an Army Soldier who was killed in action shortly after the Normandy invasion in 1944.

Volunteers found the medal in the storm debris and turned it in to Master Gunnery Sgt. Paul Kicker, who was volunteering off-duty. Kicker, a Tuscaloosa native stationed in Fla, gave the medal to Maj. Gen. Paul D. Brown, Commander of the Alabama Air National Guard, who was also volunteering off-duty. Brown shared the story with members of the 117th Air Refueling Wing, which led to a local press release.

Lori Sullivan, a local amateur genealogist, saw a Fox 6 news release on Facebook and began searching. She identified the next of kin and contacted the 117th Air Refueling Wing on Wednesday.

We are looking forward to reuniting the Purple Heart with the family. We would like to thank all of the volunteers who have been involved with this endeavor.

CDC/PME testing will NOT be available on Saturday
15 OCT 2011. Testing will resume on Sunday 16 OCT 2011 at 0900.

Please schedule your members as soon as possible. Once the 10 slots are filled anyone else will have to be added to a waiting list. TO SCHEDULE A TEST, PLEASE CALL 205-714-2452 or x2572 or send an email to: 117ARW.DPMT@ang.af.mil

TRICARE reduces pharmacy home delivery co-pays

9/22/2011 - FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AFNS) -- Co-payments for some medications provided through TRICARE Pharmacy Home Delivery are being reduced to zero. As of Oct. 1, home delivery beneficiaries may fill generic prescriptions at no cost to themselves.

Generic formulary drugs purchased through home delivery currently cost $3 for a 90-day supply.

"These new copays make using TRICARE Pharmacy Home Delivery more affordable than ever," said Navy Rear Adm. Christine Hunter, the TRICARE Management Activity deputy director. "Home delivery offers a great value for patients taking maintenance medications for chronic conditions."

The following changes to the TRICARE pharmacy co-payments are scheduled to go into effect Oct. 1:

- Generic formulary drugs purchased at retail pharmacies will go from $3 to $5.
- Brand name formulary drugs from retail pharmacies will go from $9 to $12.
- Nonformulary medications will go from $22 to $25 in both retail and home delivery.

Brand name formulary drugs purchased through home delivery will have the same $9 co-payment. Co-payments for prescriptions filled through home delivery cover a 90-day supply, but only a 30-day supply when purchased at a retail pharmacy.

"This is the first change to TRICARE pharmacy co-pays since 2002," Hunter said. "Our goal is to keep costs as low as possible for our beneficiaries and (the Defense Department)."

Military members, their families and retirees are increasingly using home delivery to get their maintenance medications delivered through U.S. mail, saving TRICARE about $30 million in 2010. Use of home delivery has grown in 2011 by nearly 10 percent over 2010. More than 1 million prescriptions per month are filled through the service.

For more information about TRICARE pharmacy, the new co-payment rates and home delivery, visit www.tricare.mil/pharmacy.

Officials expect smooth 'Don't Ask, Don't Tell' repeal

by Donna Miles
American Forces Press Service

9/20/2011 - WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- The law is passed, the studies completed, the findings certified and the service member training accomplished. Today, after years of debate and months of preparation, the Defense Department starts on a new footing with the repeal of the so-called "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" law that since 1993 has banned gays and lesbians from serving openly in the military.

"Statements about sexual orientation will no longer be a bar to enlisting in the military or a cause for dismissal," said Army Maj. Gen. Gary S. Patton, the chief of staff for the Pentagon's repeal implementation team.

In addition, former service members separated from the military under Don't Ask, Don't Tell based solely on their sexual orientation will be eligible to reapply to return to military service.

Patton said their applications will be evaluated using the same standards as all other candidates, and decisions will be based on needs of the service.

As these long-anticipated changes take place, Patton said he expects the repeal implementation to stay on track because of the pre-repeal training across the force. In addition, many other existing policies considered "sexual-orientation neutral" remain in place.

Duty assignments won't be affected, and living and working conditions won't change, Patton said. Service members won't be separated or segregated based on sexual orientation, and will continue to share billeting and berthing as in the past.

With repeal, benefits will remain as they are. Service members will be able to designate whomever they want to receive member-designated benefits such as Serviceman's Group Life Insurance, he said.

Other benefits, such as basic allowance for housing, are limited by law and statute to cover only opposite-sex spouses and can't be extended to same-sex partners, Patton said.

However, the Defense Department is studying the possible extension of other benefits where eligibility is not specifically defined by law, such as use of military morale, welfare and recreation facilities to same-sex partners.

"We have not arrived at a decision on that," Patton said. "The department continues to explore that possibility, post-repeal."

Although the vast majority of military members and their families surveyed before the repeal indicated they had no issues with the repeal, Patton said he recognizes that some may. To those, he has a message: "We are not trying to change your beliefs. You have your freedom to exercise your beliefs and your freedom of speech."

But with that, he said, "you have to maintain your dignity and respect for others."

No new policy will allow anyone who disagrees with the repeal to break their contractual obligations. Anyone who has complaints or issues associated with the repeal should take them to a commander or inspector general, Patton said. Sexual orientation issues will not be addressed by equal opportunity channels in the way gender, race and religion issues are.

With the repeal in effect, Patton said he expects military members will honor it.

"The repeal is a law," he said. "The military follows the law and we are executing this as part of our mission."

A key in carrying out the mission, he said, is a principle emphasized during mandatory pre-repeal training throughout the force that the military has embraced throughout its history.

"The training focused on the changes in policy, that sexual orientation is not a reason for a person to be denied enlistment in the service or separated from the service. And that we continue to treat all service members with dignity and respect," Patton said.

Part of that respect, he said, is to allow all service members to live honest lives.

"During Don't Ask, Don't Tell, gay and lesbian service members were required by law to withhold their sexual orientation, and in some cases, they potentially violated their own personal integrity," Patton said. "Upon repeal of Don't Ask, Don't Tell, they won't be placed in that predicament."

As a result, the repeal "will strengthen the military," he said. "It will continue to allow us to keep gay and lesbian service members in the military, and we will be a better military for it."

A Fitness Point of View From an “Old Guy”

By Col. Steven Berryhill, Commander, 117 ARW

First, a little background on me to try to convince you to read this short article and perhaps even think about what I'm about to say. I joined the Air Force in 1980 at the wispy weight of 175 pounds. I was 22, very active, and ate whatever I wanted. The Air Force Fitness Program was somewhere between “non-existent” and “pencil-whipped.” It was sometime in the early 90s that the Active Duty Air Force attempted to establish a Fitness Program. The only thing consistent about the AF Fitness Program for the next 15 years was change. First there was a run and a weigh-in, then walk or run, then bike, and finally a step-test and walk or a run. All versions were largely ignored by the Guard.

My level of fitness could be described as “typical” for the first 20 years of my career. My poor eating habits slowly started to add weight to my frame. More responsibility at work and a growing family at home reduced the time I used to set aside for exercise. My metabolism slowed. Throw in a couple of nagging injuries, which probably resulted from carrying around too much weight, I found myself tipping the scale at 230 pounds in 2006. It was insidious. Being heavy and “banged-up,” it didn't take long for me to realize that I couldn't lose weight with exercise alone.

With some help from my wife at home, I started a diet. Wait; strike the word “diet.” “Diet” infers a program where you eat less for a period of time and then eventually return your old ways. A better word is “lifestyle.” It takes some reading and experimentation, but there are countless methods to improve your life-style by what you eat. I started with simply eating less. You can find a lot of books and internet information which focus on quantity. That is a good start, but, you can do even better if you closely examine what you are putting into your digestive system. At my house, we have settled upon a version of the Paleolithic (Paleo) eating lifestyle. Google it, if you want to learn more about that one. There are plenty of other ways when it comes to eating. You just have to find the one best for you.

In the paragraph above I mentioned my wife. Buy-in from your family is important. If you are eating spinach and everyone else sitting at the table is eating Burger King, you are doomed to failure. Planning what you are going to eat in advance and shopping for the week, help stop drive-thrus and pizza deliveries. The excuse “I don't have time to eat healthy” can be avoided with a little planning.

We are all familiar with the requirements of the current Air Force Fitness test. Keep in mind, it is the test, not the workout, which you need to accomplish every day to lose weight or be fit. Pushups, running, and crunches every day gets old fast. Fashion a varied workout program that works for you. You might try the AF Fitness Test weekly or bi-weekly. If your program is working, you will get faster in the run and your crunches and pushups will also improve. Your decreasing waist measurement will be a buy-product of your life style. For me, I found that what the experts preached was, in fact, true; by changing what and how I ate, I averaged one pound of weight loss a week. One pound a week may sound slow when we hear claims of “10 pounds in one week” on the TV. Fitness experts tell us though, that “crash-diets” can't be maintained. Who can eat grapefruits for the rest of their lives? Remember, you are trying to establish an eating lifestyle you can maintain. When the weight comes off, the run times go down. Think how much slower your mile and a half would be if you had to carry one or two 10 pound bowling balls. The inverse is also true.

I doubt that I will ever get back to my 2nd Lt. weight of 175 pounds, but I finally did get below the 200 mark this summer. I still have to work at it every day. It's not easy. Yes, there are days when I fall off the wagon. For me, I have found that when I have a good eating and exercise work week, it's acceptable to be a “little-bad” watching my favorite team on Saturday.

To sum it up, it's about what you eat, getting family buy-in, and developing an exercise program that works for you. Look for more fitness and life-style articles from your fellow guardsmen in the near future. You can do this!

TAZORED

The 117th Security Forces Squadron recently held a class providing non-lethal TAZER® Training. This training was a coordinated event between the 117th SFS training section and the Vestavia Hills Police Department. The training consisted of 8hrs of classroom training and practical application. Each trainee was required to fire two targeted live training cartridge for initial qualification.

Five volunteers demonstrated the practical application of the TAZER®. SSgt. Ronald Stracuzzi, SSgt. Austin Liquori-Martin, SSgt. David Bensinger, SSgt. Anthony Disalvo, A1C Michael Guant.

TAZER® training is a recurring item for Security Forces in compliance with AFI: 31-207 and is considered a form of non-lethal force. Security Forces are required to carry at least one form of non-lethal force when posted. The 117th SFS members are currently authorized and trained to carry the Monadnock Expandable Baton with this recent training the TAZER® X-26 Electronic Control Device.

The 117 SFS has also trained in active shooter scenarios with the Hoover Police Department in coordination with the 117th ARW Antiterrorism Force Protection Section, Mr. Jeffrey Green a former Hoover Police Department detective.

A major contributing factor to this critical training being conducted is due to the 117th SFS having numerous members actively serving with local civilian police departments and their current assignments to the 117th Security Forces Squadron.

Lt. Col. Fred L. Bass, Commander 117th SFS; a Hoover Police Department Lieutenant, is hopeful that the 117th SFS will be participating in many other joint training opportunities with local police departments and agencies in the future.
